S.A. Resolution #8 Resources in Syllabi for Mental Health

Sponsored by: Yamini Bhandari '17 Matthew Stefanko '16

Whereas, Cornell's Mental Health Services are available for students facing stressful situations or academic issues.

Whereas, Syllabi serve as resources that students use frequently to learn more about classes and resources available to them.

Whereas, many professors include information about available mental health resources and students have expressed that these resources are helpful to them during difficult portions of the semester.

Whereas, offering professors suggestions on language and resources can help ensure most Syllabi include information on resources.

Whereas, a formal resolution will help build momentum for these changes in other meetings with faculty and administrators.

Be it therefore resolved, that Professors adopt the following language to include in all syllabi:

It's normal to experience stress at a school like Cornell; it is important to realize when this stress is no longer healthy and instead becomes debilitating. Professors, administrators, and students recognize the importance of accommodating this stress

27 and there are a number of resources on campus meant to assist you in times of need. If 28 you are feeling this way at any point throughout the semester, reach out to your 29 professor, or teaching assistant for academic advice and support. Additionally, the 30 following resources are available to offer stress relief, and promote your mental and 31 emotional wellbeing:

32 -EARS is a peer-to-peer, anonymous resource willing to listen to any problems you may 33 face. (607-255-EARS) -CAPS provides crisis intervention, brief counseling, and 34 outpatient psychiatric care to Cornell students. -Call Gannett 24/7 to speak with a
35 healthcare provider at 255-5155 -Let's Talk provides offsite walk-in counseling; check
36 the website for current locations & hours. -The Learning Strategies Center is the central 37 academic support unit providing students tutoring, supplemental courses, study groups,
38 and general study skills. Visit the LSC at 420 CCC or call 255-6310.
