LETTER OF INTENT

TO: Geoffrey Block
Student Assembly, Vice President of Finance
109 Day Hall

FROM: Cornell Concert Commission
518D Willard Straight Hall

Dear Vice President Block,

The Cornell Concert Commission (herein referred to as CCC) formally requests continued Byline Funding for the 2014-2015 and 2015-2016 academic years. For the fifth year in a row, the CCC is requesting that its funding remain at $12.00 per undergraduate student. In accordance with the instructions set forth by the Student Assembly, CCC has compiled this application complete with an overview of the organization and budget breakdowns from the past three academic years, as well as projected budgets. Included in these breakdowns are individual concert expenses, revenues, and subsidies from allocated funds.

The Cornell Concert Commission is a unit of the Office of the Dean of Students and receives the entirety of its budget from the Student Activity Fee of graduate and undergraduate students. CCC is operated by and completely comprised of Cornell University students. The purpose of CCC is to provide the campus and general community with large-scale musical entertainment at a reduced price to full-time students. CCC has brought nationally popular and widely sought-out musical talent with ticket prices for students a fraction of national averages.

Over the course of the last three years, most shows have yielded better than expected results and revenues, entertaining tens of thousands of people. Within the last academic year alone, CCC successfully sold out two concerts at Barton Hall and another in Bailey Hall. Clearly with strong concert attendance and a thriving general body, CCC provides the Cornell student body with performers whom they want to see. CCC wishes to continue this success into the future.

Sincerely,

Peter Schwartz '14

SUMMARY REQUEST FOR FUNDING

Each year, Cornell Concert Commission attempts to fulfill its mission statement by bringing between 4 and 6 concerts to Cornell, including the Welcome Weekend free show. We also allocate $6,000 to co-sponsor smaller concerts on campus produced by other student organizations which would lack the resources to do so otherwise. From the beginning of the Fall 2011 term to the end of Spring 2013 term, CCC has produced and co-produced a total of 12 shows: 2 on the Arts Quad, 7 in Barton Hall, 1 in Bailey Hall and 2 at the State Theatre; all while keeping ticket prices low for students. In the previous 2 years, Cornell student ticket prices were discounted an average of $6.50 below the general public price. Excluding the 2 free shows, the average student ticket cost $19.30.

CCC feels that we have satisfied a diverse musical palate at Cornell University over the past two years. However, as performers rely ever-increasingly on concert revenue en lieu of dwindling record sales, artist honoraria continue to increase. As a result, frequently requested artists, whom significant numbers of students would pay to see perform, by and large are out of our price range. While we recognize the importance and impact of multiple shows a year on Cornell's campus life, CCC is hesitant to raise ticket prices too far above our $20 goal.

With Bailey Hall as an available venue, we have distributed $30,000 of our allocation with the intention of organizing a smaller scale concert for students and the public. If such an opportunity does not arise, this budgeted funding will be used to increase the Talent budget for a Barton Hall show.

2014-2015 and 2015-2016 Projected Budgets

Number of Shows	Type	Subsidy	Total
1	Free Show	$35,000	$35,000
1	Bailey Hall	$30,000	$30,000
3	Barton Hall	$30,000	$90,000
	Co-Sponsorship	$6,000	$6,000
	Yearly Expenses	$20,000	$20,000
		Total Subsidy	$181,000

Continuing under this allocation structure, CCC has the potential to bring a reasonably large artist for the Welcome Weekend free show, three moderately sized concerts in Barton Hall, and a Bailey Hall show. Granted, the selections process is often unpredictable and if a larger performer should become available, the concert breakdown is likely to change. Set in the classic collegiate backdrop that is the Arts Quad, the Welcome Weekend free show welcomes back the student body, strengthens CCC's general body, and introduces freshman to the beginning of their Cornell experience. Under the general framework we've been applying, this distribution also takes into account the rising talent fees.

Although the cost of talent continues to climb within the music industry, CCC understands the difficulty of the University's current financial situation. Although a challenge, the current allocation is sufficient to continue providing the student body with quality entertainment. Since we are not asking for an increase for the 2014-2016 budget cycle, we expect our distribution to be the same as the one for the 2013-2014 school year.

2013-2014 Projected Budget

Number of Shows	Type	Subsidy	Total
1	Free Show	$35,000	$35,000
1	Bailey Hall	$30,000	$30,000
3	Barton Hall	$30,000	$90,000
	Co-Sponsorship	$6,000	$6,000
	Yearly Expenses	$20,000	$20,000
		Total Subsidy	$181,000

Therefore, Cornell Concert Commission will request the same $12.00 per student per year in Byline Funding from the Student Assembly in order to yield a total allocation of $175,000-185,000 (SA and GPSA pooled funds) per year for the next two academic years.

MISSION STATEMENT

“It is the mission of the CCC to select, promote, and produce all aspects of popular concerts at Cornell.” (Article II, Constitution of the Cornell Concert Commission). The Cornell Concert Commission’s mission is to provide the student body with popular and diverse musical entertainment that reflects the varied musical interests of all students, with each event being financially sound.

The Cornell Concert Commission, in accordance with Student Assembly guidelines, maintains a policy of preference towards Cornell students in regards to ticket prices and availability. For every show, Cornell students are offered a lower ticket price than the general public. Typically, CCC tries to offer students an average of a $5.00 decrease in ticket price as compared to the general public price. This decrease is only available with proof of the student’s enrollment, whether it is showing a Cornell ID at the Box Office on the day of the concert or logging in through Kerberos on CornellConcerts.com. In this manner, Cornell students can see how they are directly benefiting from their contribution to the Student Activity Fee. In addition, our ability to subsidize shows allows a significant decrease in ticket prices for all concert patrons when compared to the prices at other venues.

Cornell students are also given priority for ticket availability. Tickets go on sale for Cornell students at least a full day prior to being available to the general public. In the case of seated concerts, Cornell students are offered the highest scale seats.

Part of the mission of the Cornell Concert Commission is to assist other student groups in bringing musical acts to the Cornell campus. Approximately 5% of CCC’s budget is dedicated to offering co-sponsorships to any student group, aiming to bring musical talent onto campus for events open to the entire student body. These groups apply for funding by means of an online application. Then each group is required to give a presentation to the executive board, during which their proposed estimated budget is reviewed and questioned. If the executive board votes to co-sponsor the group, that group’s leadership then presents before and is questioned by the general body. Ultimately, the final vote to co-sponsor an event is decided by the general body. Funding is not the only way in which we assist these organizations. CCC is always willing to offer advice and resources to any organization planning musical programming.

Finally, this past year CCC began what we hope will be a continuing tradition of collaboration with the Multicultural Concert Funding Advisory Board. Our two groups, along with CCC sister organization CUPB, brought John Legend to a sold-out Bailey Hall crowd. The benefits of this collaboration—both financially and in the productive discourse between the groups—were deeply felt. We hope that this can continue to be a hallmark of our organization.

All of these aspects are important aims for CCC and we aim to continue these practices in future years.

ORGANIZATION PROFILE

Organizational Chart

Membership

CCC has one of the largest active student memberships on campus. Current membership stands at 208, with an additional 240 freshman in the process of becoming new members. Well over 125 members are active and attend every meeting. The remaining members still retain their voting membership by attending a meeting every other week. Executive Board and General Body meetings are held weekly on Mondays and Thursdays respectively. In addition, general members are also actively encouraged to attend weekly Executive Board meetings to better understand the jobs and responsibilities of the executive board.

The Executive Board consists of Cornell students elected annually by a plurality of the general membership. The Board manages all aspects of each concert; further and more specific job details are listed in the Constitution under Operating Procedures, Part 1, Section 1.

A large membership base ensures that a proper cross-section of the student body with a diverse musical palate is active in selecting bands that will appeal to the highest possible number of Cornell students. General members also play a critical role in the successful promotion of the event and labor-intensive work requisite for day-of production. All participation is entirely voluntary. The CCC general body fosters a welcoming and fun-oriented community which has produced lifelong friendships and ties to Cornell University.

Every semester, CCC sponsors multiple social events for its members, including bowling at Helen Newman Lanes and an annual end-of-year barbeque on the Arts Quad. These activities help foster a sense of community within the organization. For the past four years, members of the executive board and general body have competed in the Intramural Dodgeball tournament sponsored by the University. Since these types of activities have been such a success, we plan on making sure they are available in years to come.

As stated in Article IV, section 7 of the CCC Bylaws, the Executive Board is elected annually every November by a plurality vote of the General Membership to serve a one-year term from January to December. Elections are always competitive and newly elected executive board members shadow the outgoing board for at least one concert. Both Undergraduate and Graduate/Professional Students are always welcome to run for any board position. In 2008, we amended our Constitution such that in order to run for a position, one must have been an active member of CCC for a minimum of two semesters. Descriptions of the duties of each office are found in the CCC Bylaws.

History

Created in the fall of 1971 by a group of students interested in bringing nationally famous bands to perform on campus, the CCC has continued to provide quality music programming to Cornell. Over the years, the organization's popularity has grown in size along with its membership. Although most shows were held in Barton Hall, other venues were used for various sized performers, such as Bailey Hall and even an attempted use of Schoellkopf Field. CCC can rightfully claim a place in rock history as The Grateful Dead's May 8, 1977 performance is celebrated as their best live performance recording. Over the past 41 years CCC has brought a diverse assortment of musical acts, which include:

Paul Simon	October 1973	Barenaked Ladies	February 1997
The Beach Boys	November 1975	Bob Dylan	November 1999
Bruce Springsteen	November 1978	The Strokes	September 2006
The Grateful Dead	May 1981	Furthur	February 2010
Ray Charles	November 1984	Lupe Fiasco	April 2011
Elvis Costello	May 1987	Avicii	September 2012
Phish	November 1992	Bob Dylan	March 2013

ACTIVITIES, PROGRAMMING, AND EVENTS IN THE CURRENT CYCLE

Today, CCC is advised by the Student Activities Office and follows a carefully laid out constitution. From the beginning of the Fall 2011 term to the end of Spring 2013 term, CCC has produced and co-produced a total of 12 shows: 2 on the Arts Quad, 7 in Barton Hall, 1 in Bailey Hall and 2 in the State Theatre; all while keeping ticket prices low for students.

Traditionally, CCC has been known for selecting performers from across the musical spectrum, including everything from indie rock and jazz to club mash-up artists and rap icons. The musical selection over the last 2 years has continued this vein; including performances in the genres of rock, alternative, punk, jam, and hip hop. On campus today, shows are held in the large space of Barton Hall, the more intimate space of Bailey Hall, and the open area on the Arts Quad. With artists performing in front of the Arts Quad's classic collegiate backdrop, the Free Show welcomes back the student body, celebrates the beginning of the year, and introduces freshman to the beginning of their Cornell experience.

Over the last 2 years, CCC has co-promoted 17 different events with student groups to assist other organizations in bringing musical acts to the Cornell campus. In addition to co-sponsorships, the Cornell Concert Commission was a partner with the African, Latino, Asian, and Native American Program Board (ALANA) in producing Minority Concert Fund Advisory Board (MCFAB) concerts. For example, a CCC, MCFAB, and Cornell University Program Board (CUPB) collaboration produced the John Legend event in 2013.

Our organization also has a long history of sending members of our executive board to attend the National Association of Campus Activities conference in order to improve leadership skills and learn about the facets of running large-scale concerts. For the past 2 years, leaders in student programming (including CUPB and SDPB) have represented Cornell University at NACA. Besides sampling college-circuit performers and networking with the thousands of student programmers, advisors, and vendors present, these students attend educational sessions on topical issues such as working with a limited budget, improving general member retention, risk management, and professional event management.

TICKET PRICING/SUBSIDY EXPLANATION

CCC aims to set the subsidy for a Barton show in the range of $35,000-$40,000. These values usually correspond to the approximate production costs of each show. Therefore, the budget created before the show expects Student Assembly and Graduate/Professional Student Assembly allocated funds to pay for production, promotion, hospitality, and ticketing fees and the ticket revenues to cover the artist's Talent fees and the organization's administrative fees. Expected attendance for each show is generally budgeted to be around 70% of the total capacity (1000 for Bailey and 3500 for Barton) and the expected ratio of attendance between students and general public is 3:1.

Ticket prices are calculated simply by multiplying the average ticket price by the expected attendance in order to cover the Talent fees. Student prices will be below the average ticket price, and general public will be above it. Over the past two years most concerts have roughly performed as expected, but some shows have yielded lower subsidies as a result of higher ticket revenues (such as Bob Dylan) and some shows have demanded higher subsidies (such as Major Lazer).

The Cornell Concert Commission produces at least one free show every year on the Arts Quad. There is no ticket revenue for this show, so all costs must be paid for by the allocation alone. Current approximations estimate that Talent should cost between $10,000 and $15,000 and all other costs should total $20,000. Therefore, the total cost of a free show is $30,000-$35,000.

Also, attached to the main budget is a list of all co-sponsored concerts CCC has funded over the past three years. Currently, $6,000 per year ($3,000 per semester) is set aside solely for co-sponsorships.

FINANCIAL EXPLANATION

The following is a summary of the Cornell Concert Commission's financial statements for the complete academic years 2010-2011, 2011-2012 and 2012-2013 and the budget as it stands for the current academic year 2013-2014. We will clarify terms and subjects that may not be self-explanatory.

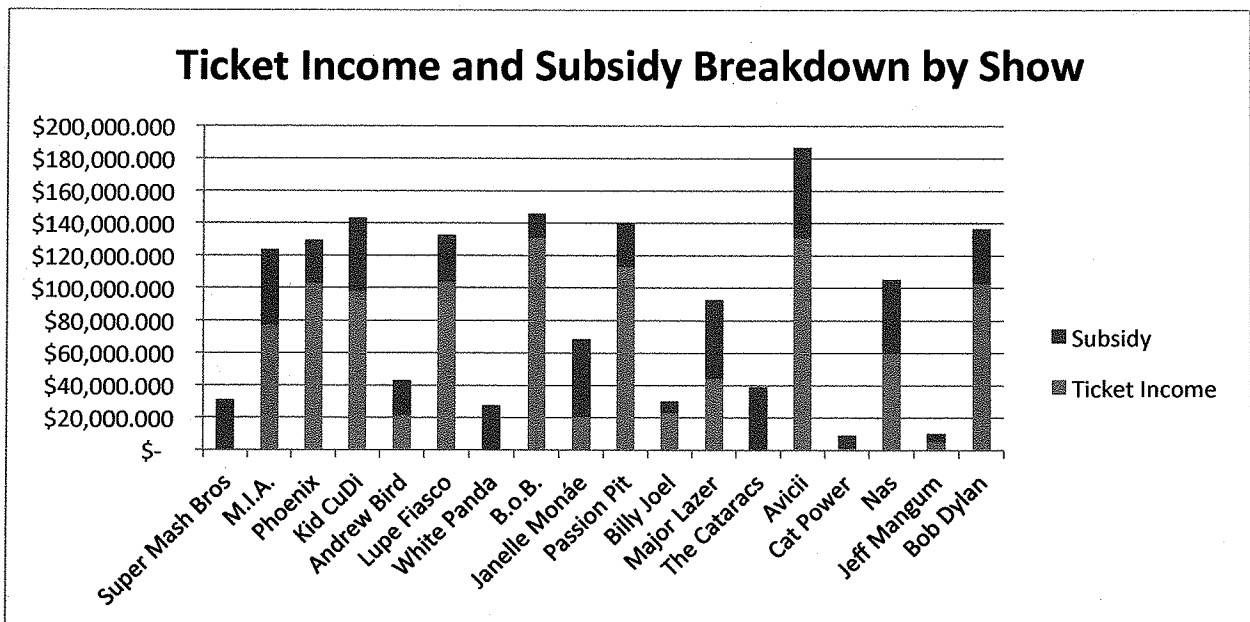

There is one additional criteria that we must make note of:

We understand that it is necessary to include the honoraria paid to each artist in order to have a complete financial statement, but we do not make this information available to the public. We would appreciate it if the Student Assembly and all other parties who may read this report keep its contents confidential. We have also provided a list of artist honorariums for comparison. Thank you.

- The first column lists the months and years of the shows.
- The second column lists the headlining artists, opening performers, the venue used, and ticket prices. Ticket prices for students and general public are listed separately.
- The third column lists the number of tickets sold followed by the breakdown of student, general public, and comp tickets. Barton Hall has a fire code limitation of 5200 capacity, but only 5000 tickets are sold due to production necessities and complimentary seats requested by the artists. Occasionally, an artist will contractually set the maximum number of available tickets below 5000.
- The fourth column contains the gross income from ticket sales for each concert.
- The fifth column lists the expenses for each concert, separated into five categories:
 - Talent is the honoraria paid to the combined artists
 - Production is the cost producing the concert, including any fees paid to booking agents (usually 10% of the Talent fee)
 - Promotions is the cost of promoting the concert, which includes poster costs, printing fees, tabling costs and newspaper ads or radio mentions
 - Hospitality is the cost of taking care of the performers' needs as outlined in the riders along with the cost of food and drinks for volunteers on day of show
 - Ticket is cost of ticketing fees associated with using university tickets, the scanning system, and with the Cornell card
- The sixth column contains the subsidy paid by CCC. This value is the difference between the expenses and the gross income. The subsidy is taken out of the funds allocated by the Student Assembly and Graduate and Professional Student Assembly.
